

Through my art, I try to give the viewer more to see and feel, and experience something in a different manner. I paint and sculpt for the eyes and the soul; the soft muted colors in many of my beach scenes capture a sense of calmness. I am affected by the light and color of our surroundings; the water, the woods and the open fields and all that nature's beauty has to offer.

My new work is more dramatic, with variations in mood, formed in abstractions of color and shape.

Painting, Sculpture and Photography have now each become an independent form of expression, but my work remains grounded in fundamentals, and my vision will always be drawn to all that is possible.
